2. You can wear a jacket without a tie when the ensemble is rather casual. Let's say you're wearing worn-out boat shoes maybe with some chinos and a jacket, in that case, it would look odd to have a tie because a tie is more formal and the other end is quite informal and you want to avoid those clashes.. At the same time if you, for example, have loafers, a pair of chinos, a dress shirt ...

In the coming weeks, you can bet on hearing someone or another hurl the phrase in accusatory manner. But, before you let someone get on their high horse for no reason, you should learn why "don't wear white after Labor Day" became one of the fashion commandments in the first place—and why it might no longer make sense to follow the rule to a tee any longer.

The Real Reason You Shouldn't Wear White After Labor Day
